

Block Hour Support

We find that for IT support, one size does not fit all. We listen very carefully to our client requirements and have made our support agreements very fair and simple to understand. We also make it very clear from the outset what you can expect from us.

For any professional sector business, using a reliable IT company for support, projects and advice is an essential backbone for running a successful company.

It is also extremely important to have access to tools that improve company processes and having a competent IT support company keeping your network and staff at peak performance, will enable you to increase your productivity and profitability.

We offer the full range of IT support services that you would expect from a professional IT support provider covering, remote and on-site support for desktops, servers, network equipment, regular maintenance and scheduled visits, management and completion of hardware and cloud driven IT projects. As well as fixed price monthly and annual contracts, our support services can also be accessed through block hour support agreements for the more PAYG and ad-hoc basis.

Affinity Financial Advisors, an independent financial advisory firm for individuals who want to provide for and invest in their retirement, utilises a block hour support contract with Amazing Support for their day-to-day remote and on-site IT support.

“As a small business utilising block hours as an IT support service option is very useful to us. We prefer to pay for the support we require as it is needed and by purchasing block hours in advance, we benefit from competitive pricing with the security of knowing that support is just a phone call away when we need it. At the end of each period, we are also able to assess the reasons for support and therefore it gives us more information and control in understanding our IT needs.”

Kim, Affinity Financial Advisors
